

College of Business Administration
Organizational Structure

The CBA consists of six academic departments and one non-academic department. Each department is lead by a department chair. Academic department chairs are elected by the department and a recommendation is made to the Dean and Chancellor; the Chairs are appointed by the Chancellor. The normal term for an academic department chair is three years. A college steering committee plays a key role in decision making. The Steering Committee consists of all CBA department chairs, CBA directors, the dean, and the associate dean.
