

Nabamita Dutta is a Professor of Economics and the Co-director of the Menard Family Initiative at the University of Wisconsin-La Crosse. To date, she has published over 60 peer-reviewed articles, being cited over 2000 times (based on Google Scholar). Her main research interests hinge at the intersection of new institutional economics and economic development with emphasis on entrepreneurship, political economy, and economics of gender. Her articles have appeared in esteemed journals like the European Journal of Political Economy, Kyklos, Small Business Economics, British Journal of Management, and Industrial Relations: A Journal of Economy and Society among others. She has been the Associate Editor of Economic Modeling since January 2020 and on the editorial board of Economies since 2018. She mainly teaches classes on International Economics, and Economic Development. Dr. Dutta has been invited to deliver talks and be a visiting research scholar across the world by institutes like IFN (Research in Industrial Organization), Stockholm, United Nations University (UNU WIDER), Helsinki, Finland, seminars organized by IHS (Institute of Humane Studies), IOEA (Institutional and Organizational Economics Academy), and University of Lincoln, UK.

Nabamita Dutta is originally from Kolkata, India and moved to this country in 2004 to do her Ph.D. in economics. She graduated from West Virginia University and moved to La Crosse, Wisconsin to start as an Assistant Professor in 2009.