

Professor Julie Ancius is a dedicated professional with a wealth of experience in the fields of taxation and financial accounting. She has been an integral part of the University of Wisconsin-La Crosse (UWL) community since 2012.

Julie's journey in academia followed a successful career in industry, where she held the position of Director of Taxation and Finance at Reinhart FoodServices before joining UWL. Her primary focus in industry was taxation, and she accumulated valuable experience working in public accounting and for multiple insurance companies, specializing in tax functions.

At UWL, Julie brings her extensive real-world experience to the classroom, where she teaches courses in financial accounting and taxation. Her commitment to education extends beyond the lecture hall as she actively engages with students during internships, providing them with practical insights and mentorship.

Julie holds a Masters of Business Taxation from the University of Minnesota and a Bachelor's degree from Mankato State. She is a Certified Public Accountant (CPA) and possesses the Chartered Global Management Accountant (CGMA) designation, underscoring her commitment to professional excellence.

With a career marked by a passion for taxation, financial acumen, and a dedication to shaping the next generation of professionals, Professor Julie Ancius continues to make a significant impact in both the academic and business realms.
