OPEN TO THE PUBLIC | PRESENTATION FOLLOWED BY Q&A

American history must be retold and reconfigured as a discipline at the K-12 level. Too many high school students grow up without knowing the real history of activist Helen Keller, the atrocities attributed to “hero” Christopher Columbus, and the horrific fall-out of the My Lai massacre. The premise of James Loewen’s American Book Award-winning work, Lies My Teacher Told Me, argues that we ignore such monumental events in American history at our collective peril.

WORKSHOP FOR EDUCATORS
2:15-3:40 p.m. | FREE AND OPEN TO
THE PUBLIC

LIES MY TEACHER TOLD ME AND HOW TO AVOID THEM

James Loewen will facilitate an interactive workshop targeted for current and future educators that introduces pedagogical principles based on Loewen’s work on curriculum reform. Realizing that all of us have been, are, and will be educated by current and future educators, everyone is encouraged to attend and participate.
