

Archaeology student invited to present at upcoming WiSys Board of Trustees Meeting May 3

Archaeology student William Feltz has been invited to present his research poster at the upcoming meeting of the Wisconsin System Board of Trustees, here at UWL on May 3. His work discusses rendering 3D images of Wisconsin ceramics. This is a nice acknowledgment of the important research that our archaeology students conduct.

Archaeology Students at 2017 Celebration of Research and Creativity

Thirteen Archaeology students presented the results of their research at the 2017 poster presentations. Abstracts of their papers are available. Here are some scenes:

Figure 1. Abraham Packard

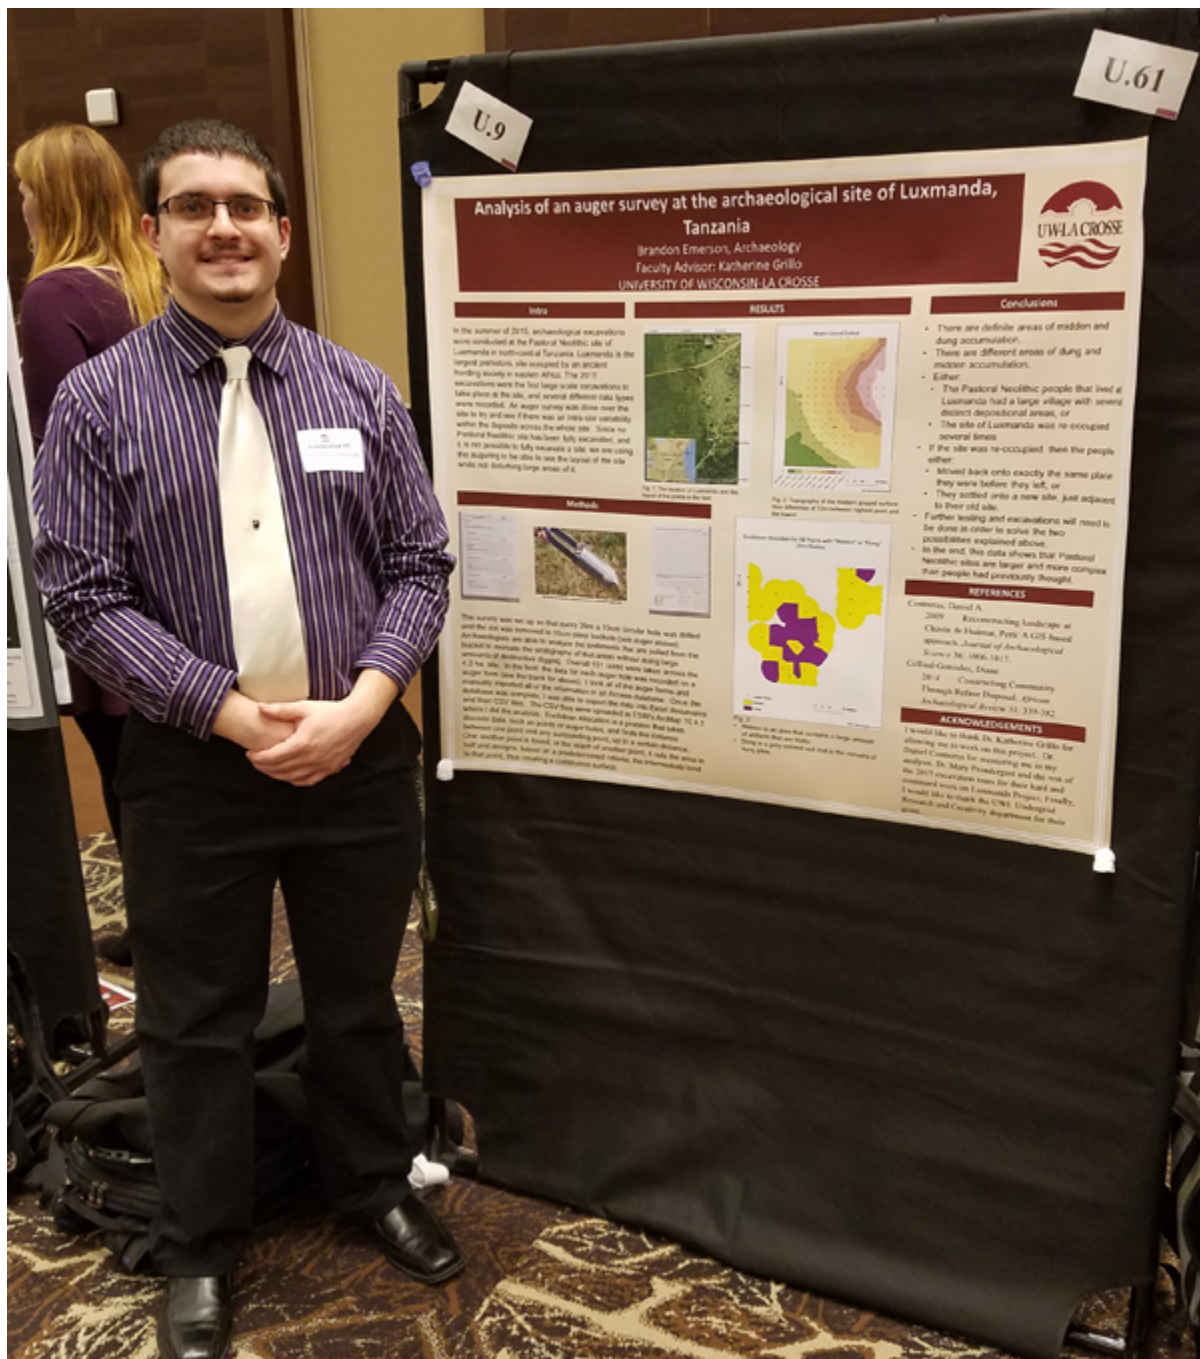

Figure 2. Brandon Emerson

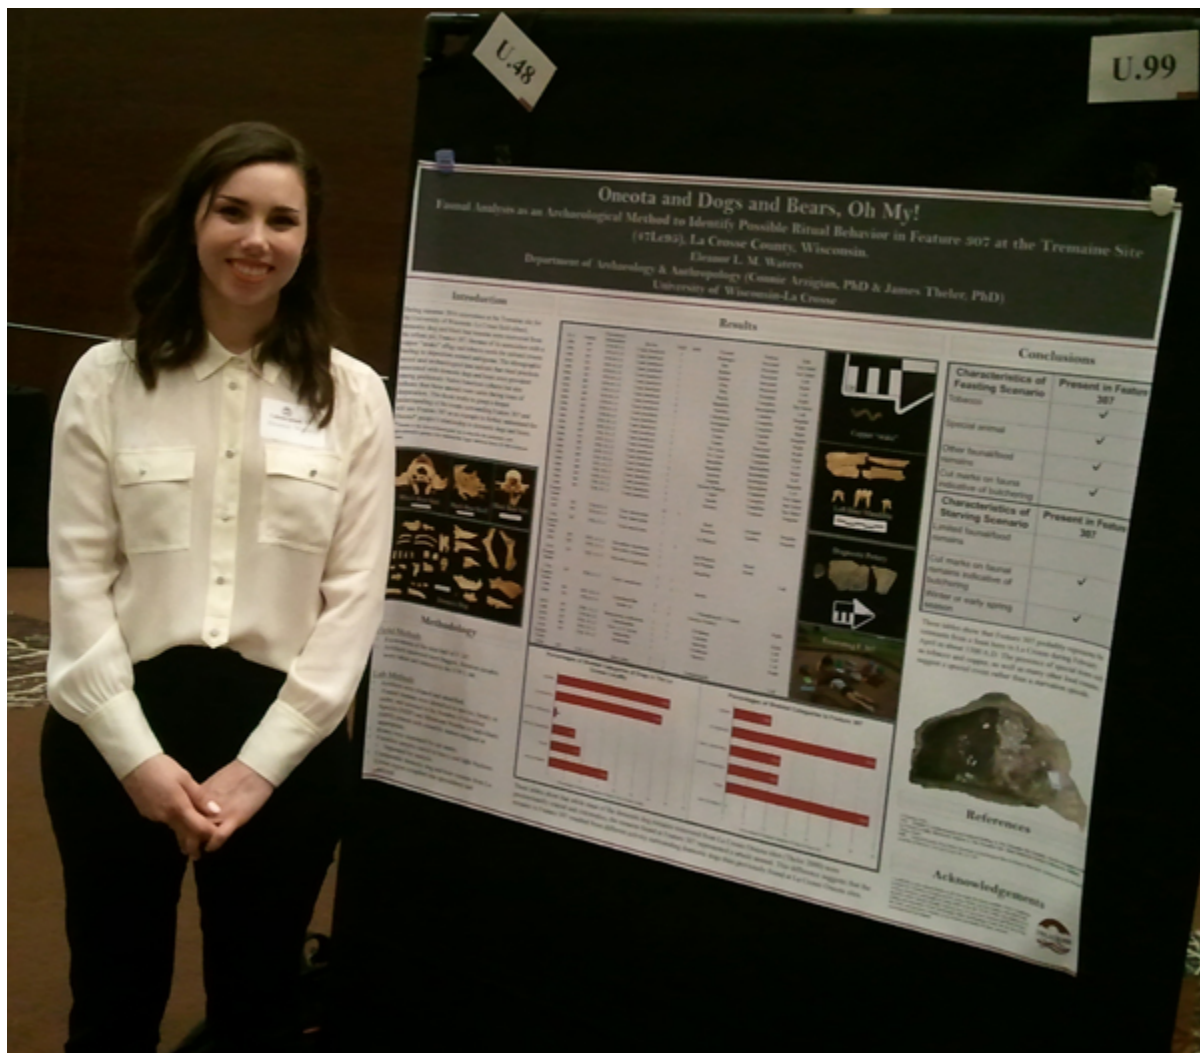

Figure 3. Eleanor Waters

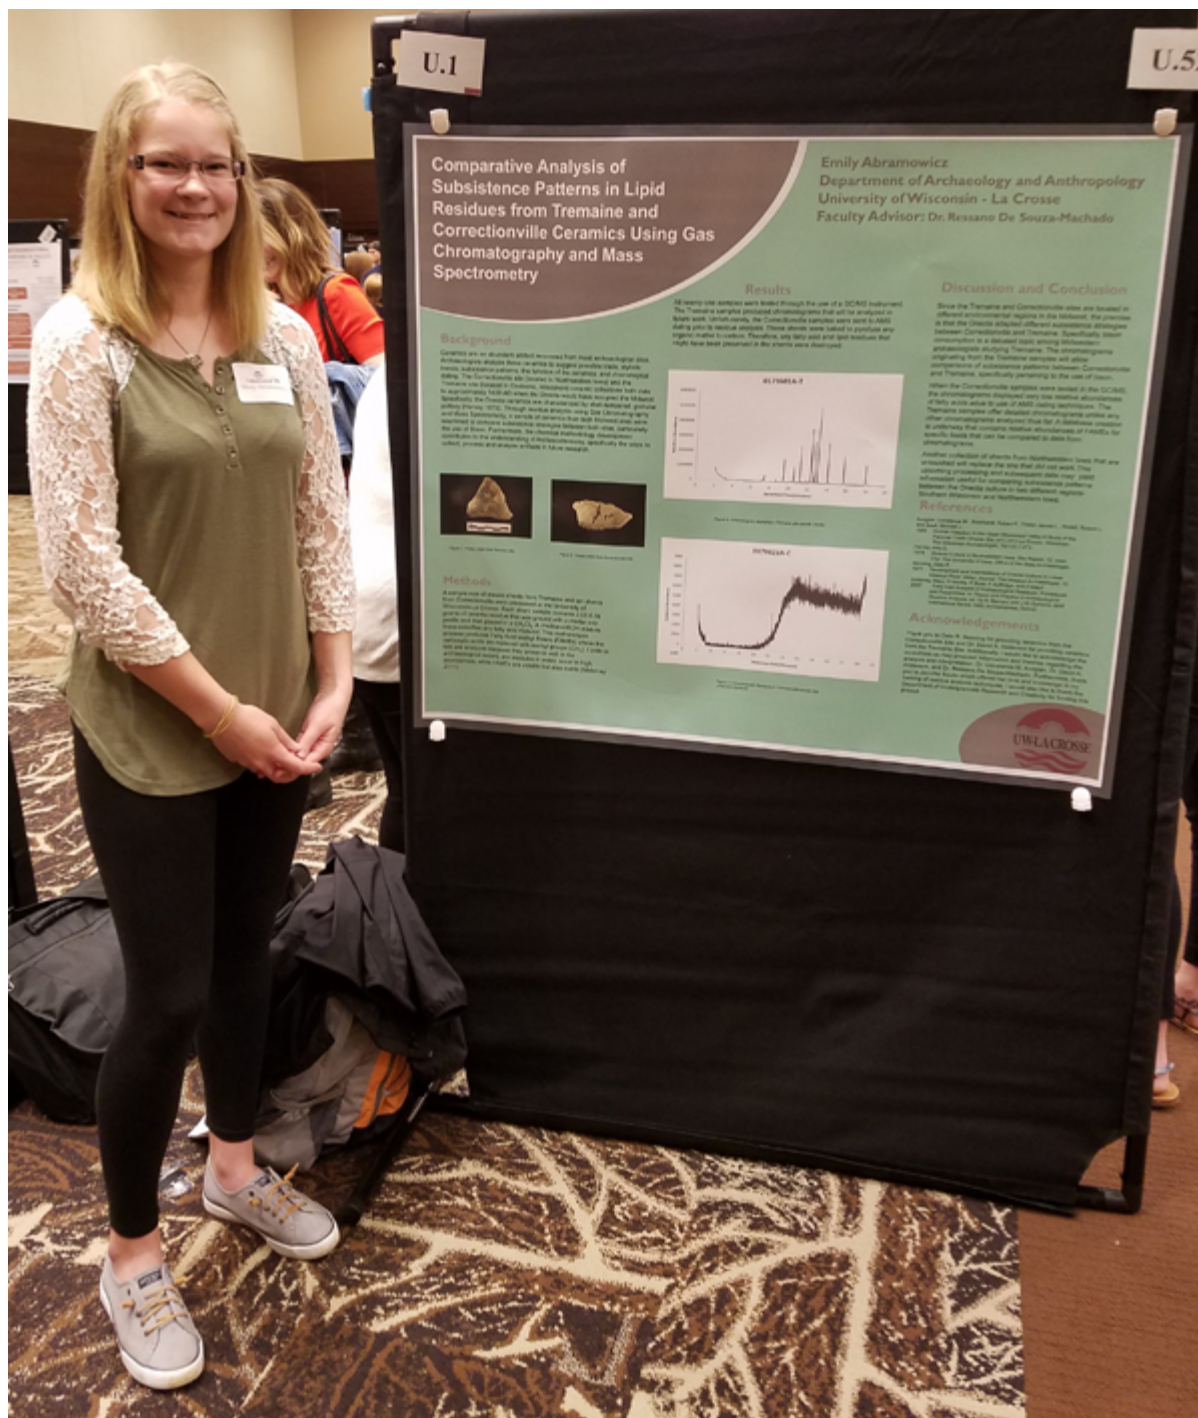

Figure 4. Emily Abramowicz

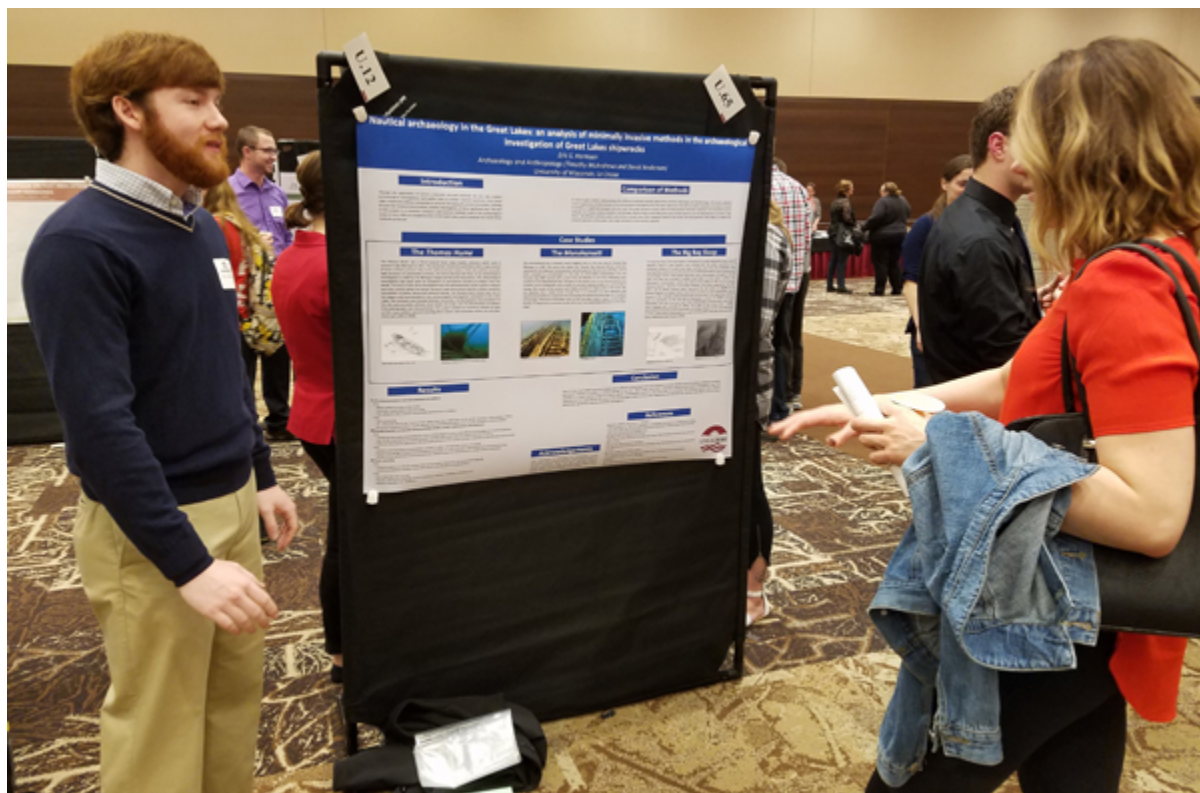

Figure 5. Eric Harmsen

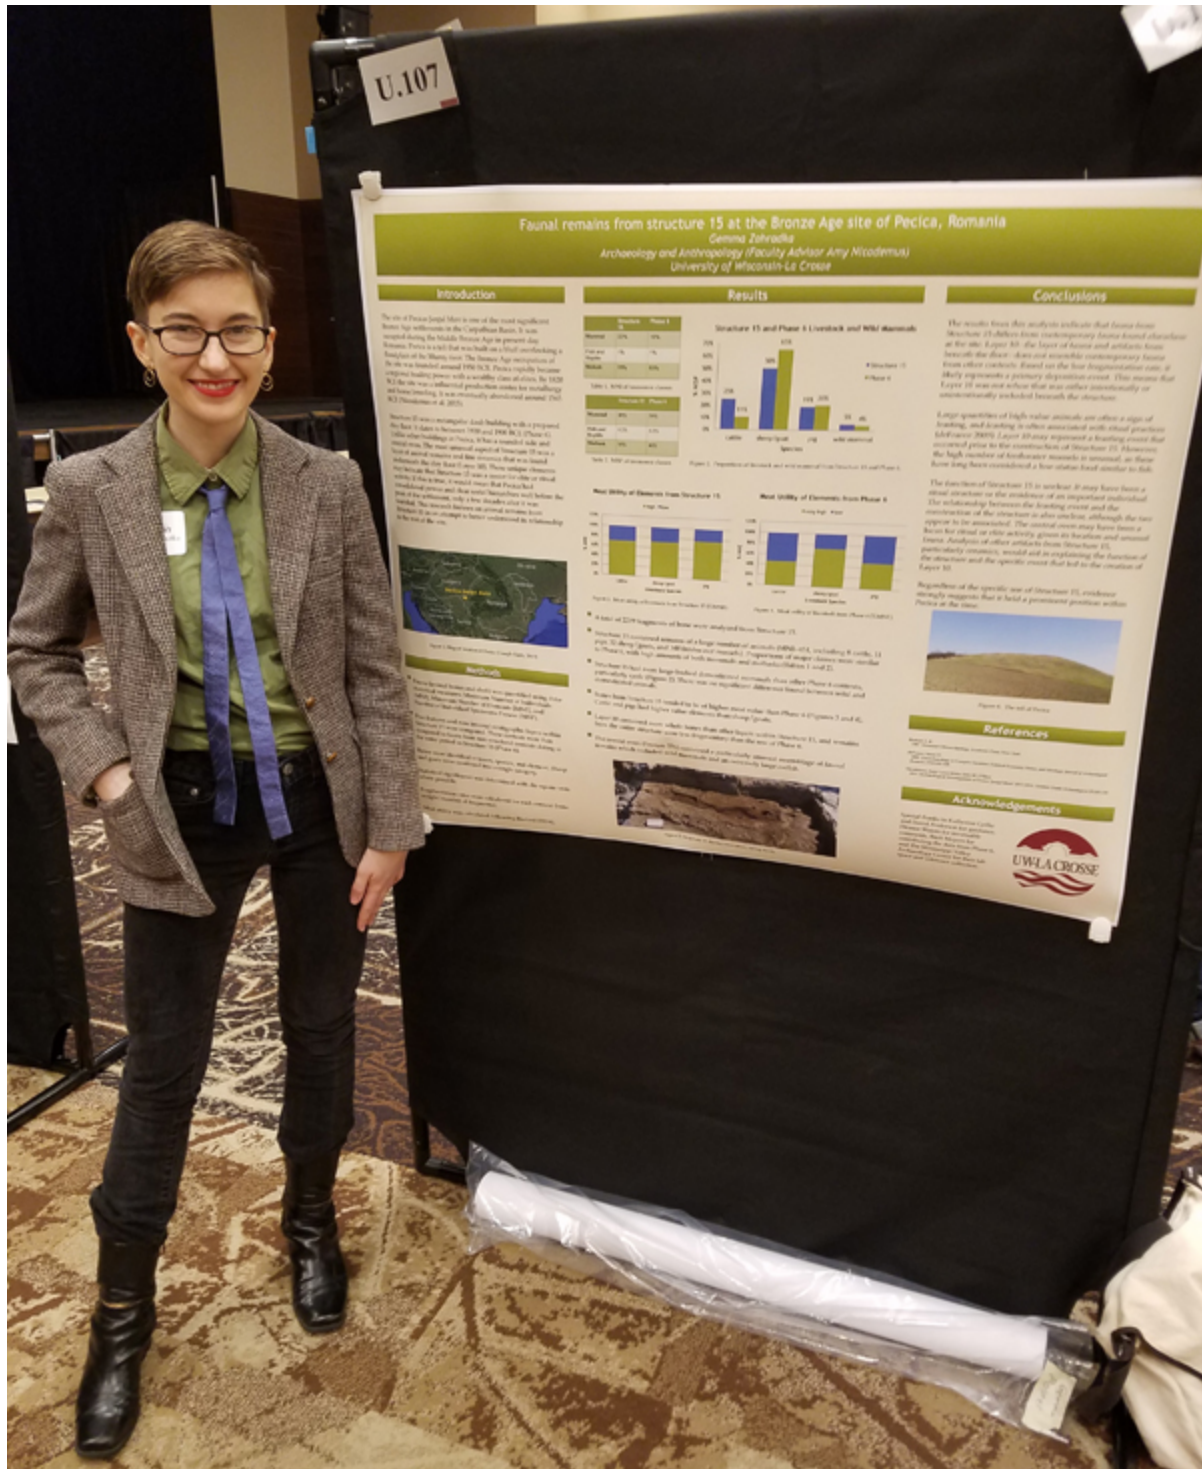

Figure 6. Gemma Zahradka

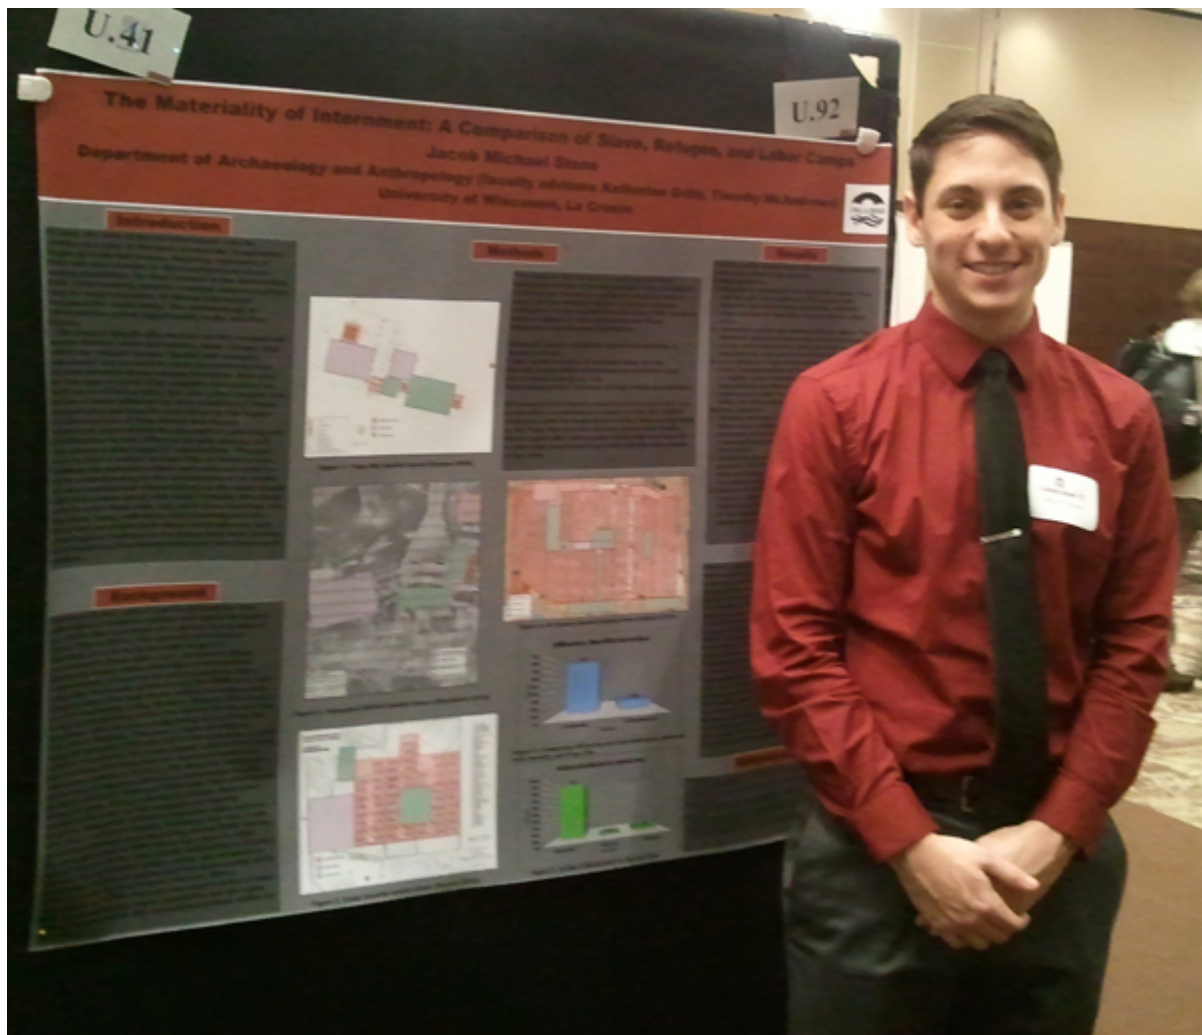

Figure 7. Jacob Stone

Figure 8. Jaelyn Roland

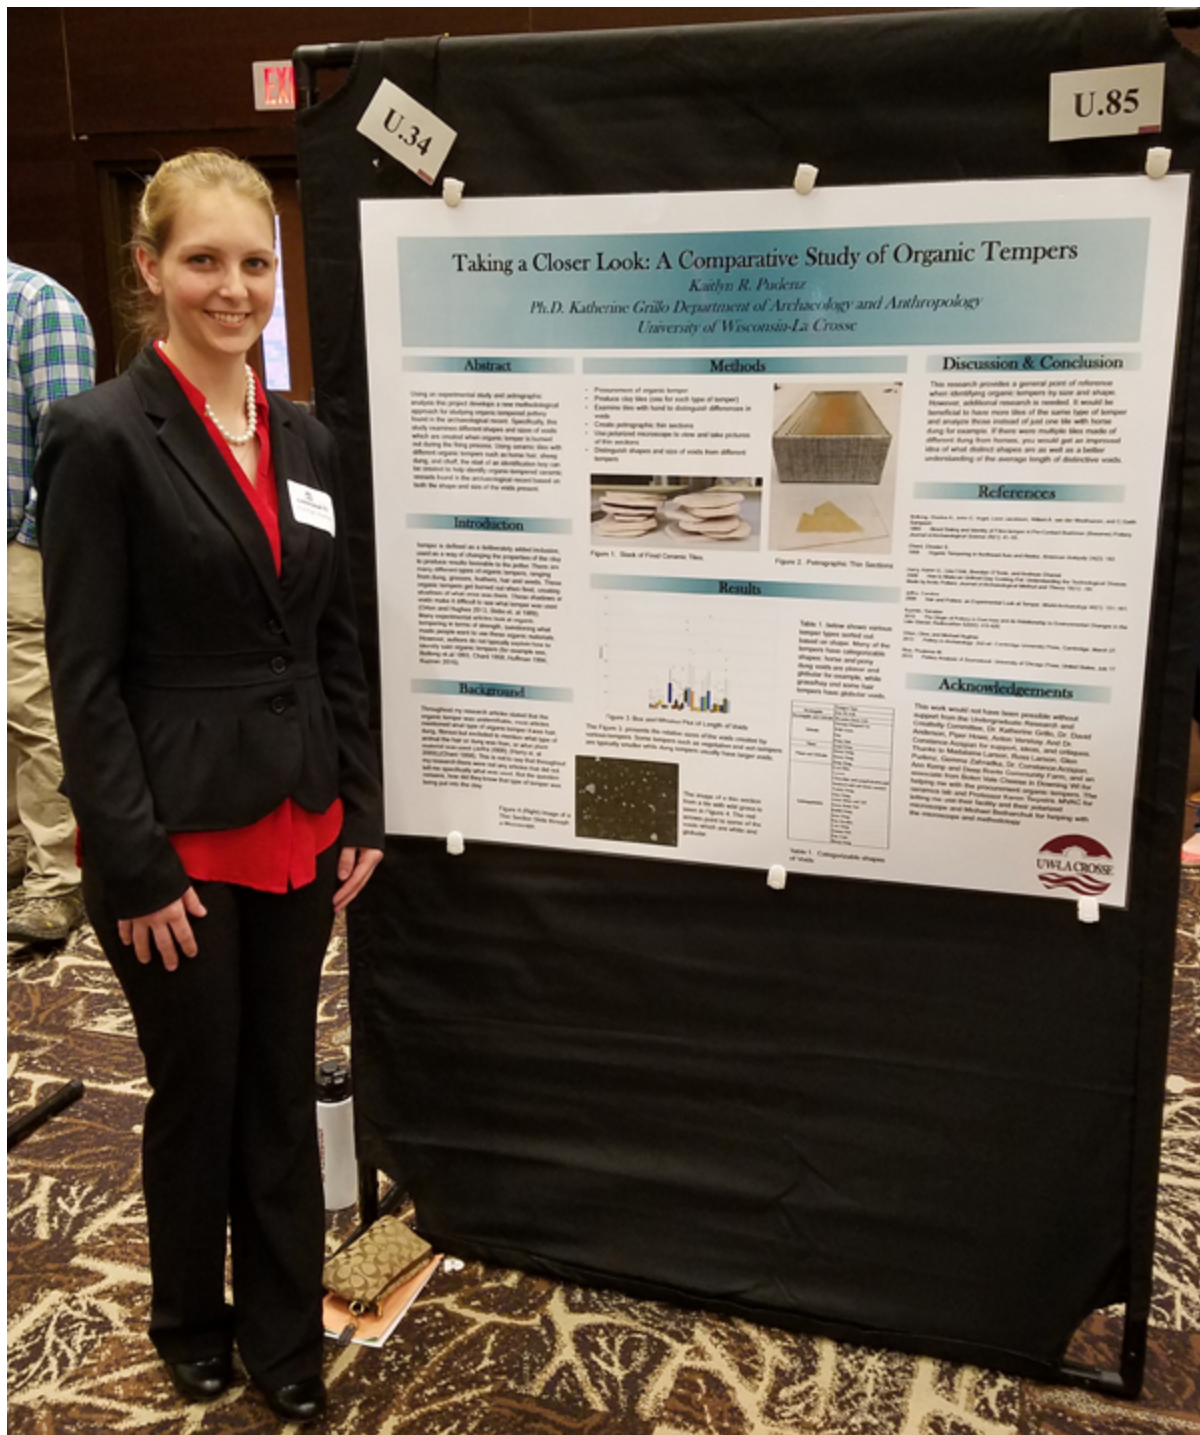

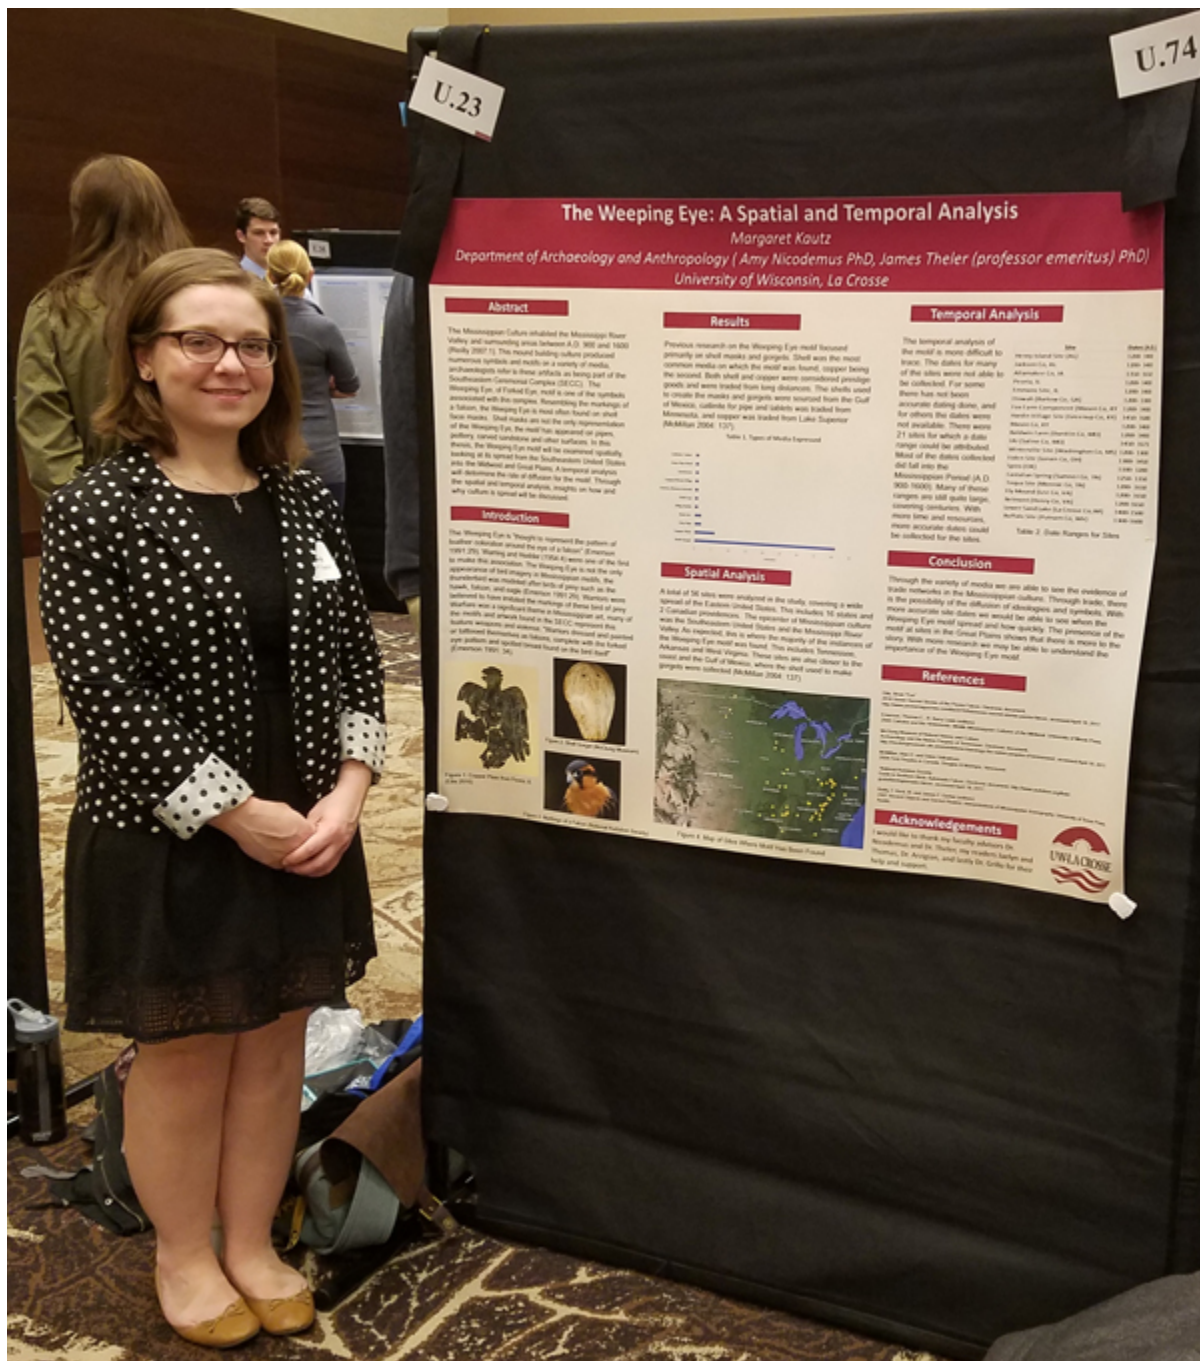

Figure 9. Kaitlyn Pudenz

Figure 10. Megan Kautz

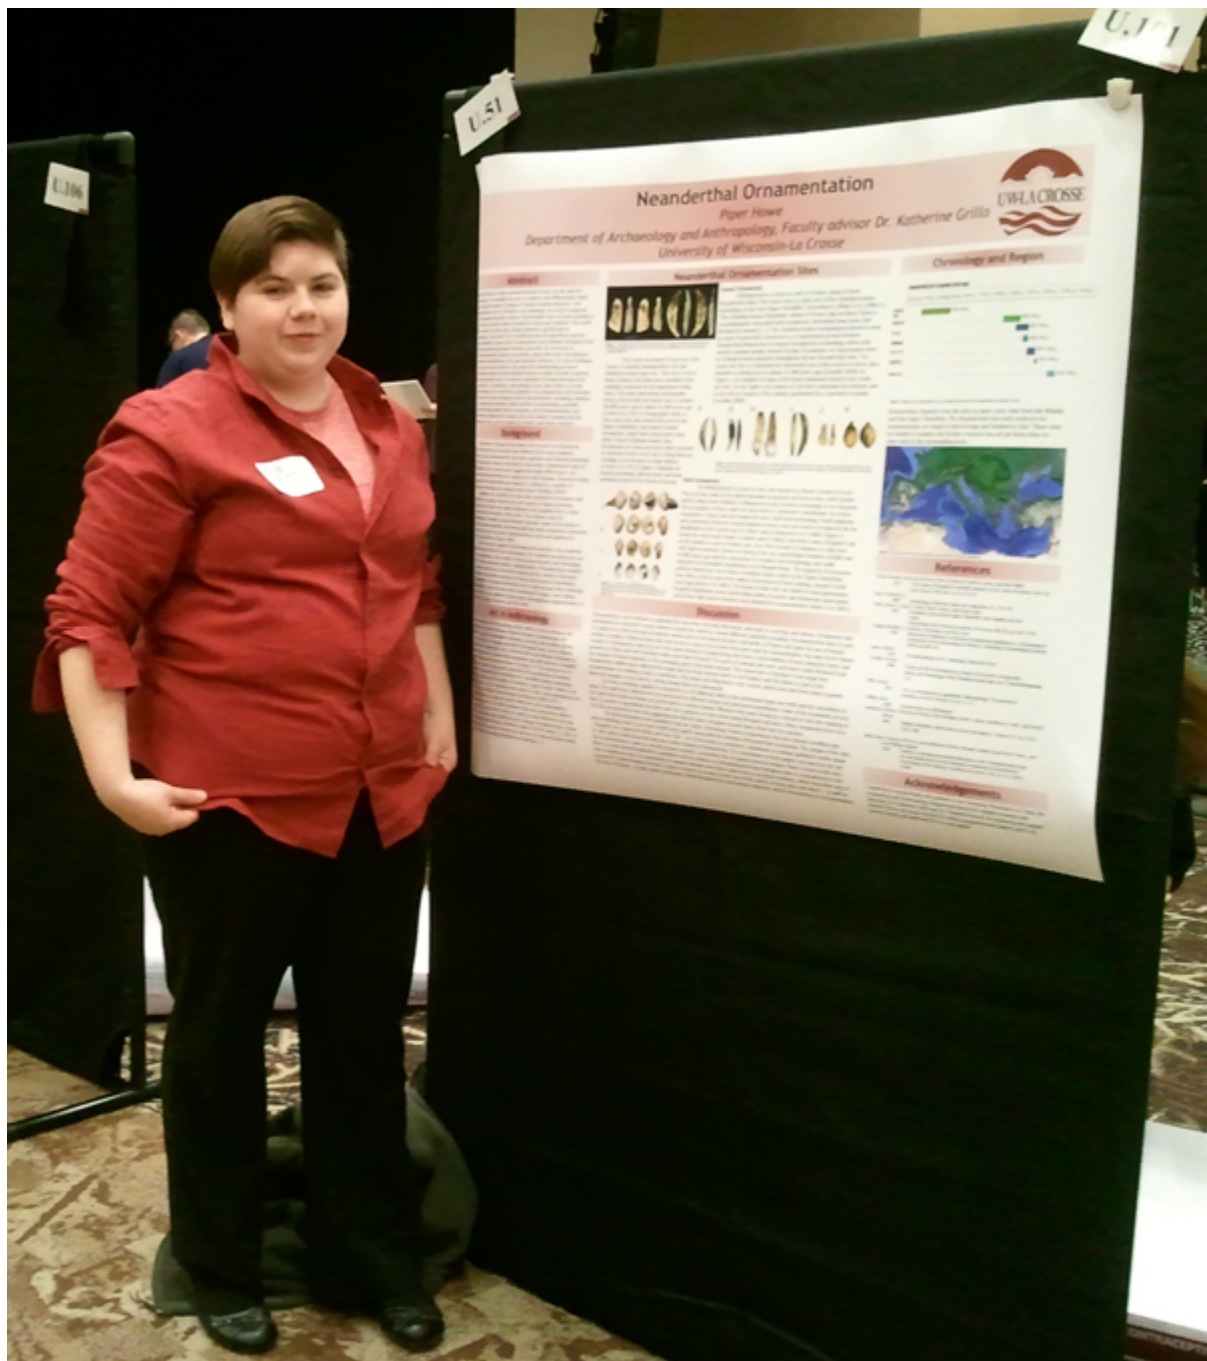

Figure 11. Piper Howe

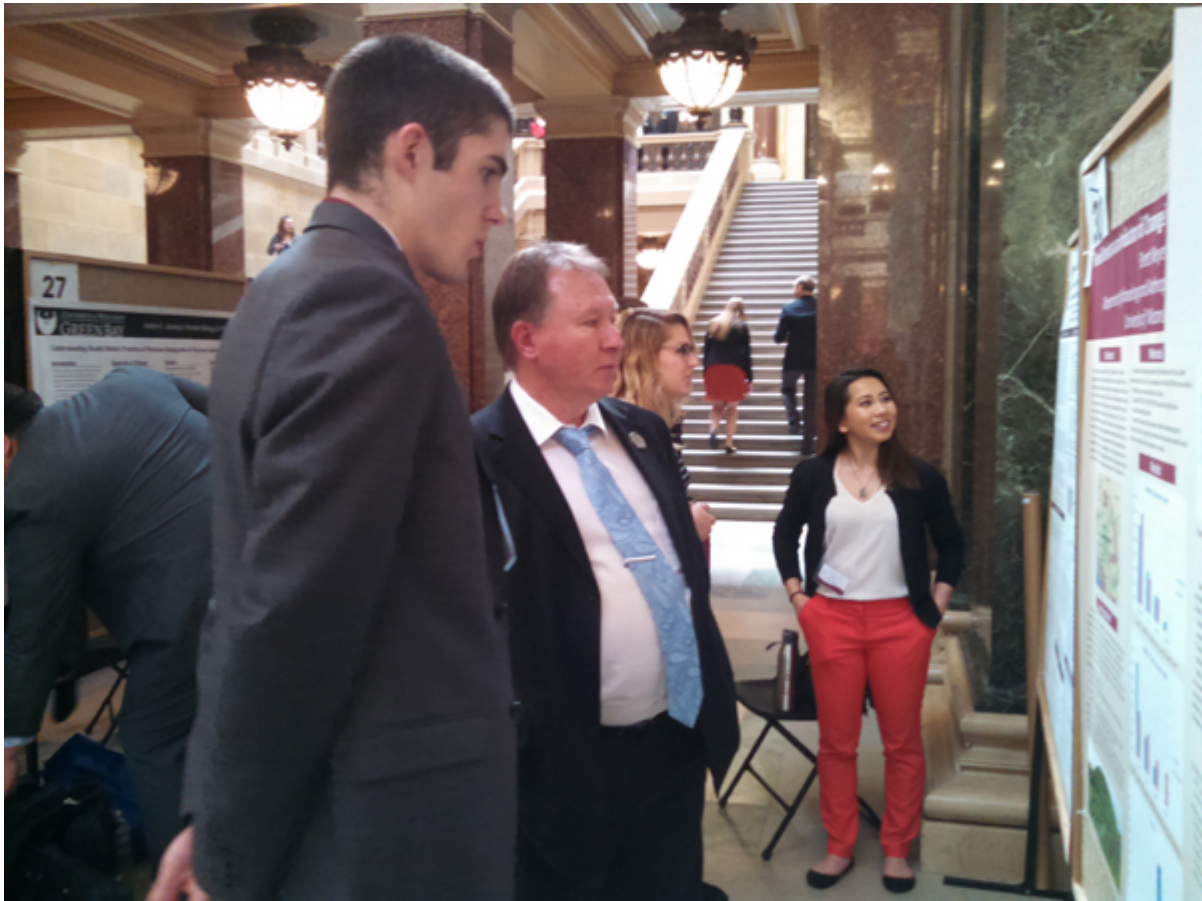

Figure 13. Billy Feltz

Posters at the Rotunda-Archaeology

Archaeology student Brett Meyer was one of six UW-L students presenting research posters in the Capital Rotunda in Madison on April 12, 2017. Brett's poster discussed his work with Dr. Amy Nicodemus on the fauna from a Romanian Bronze age site. In the photo below, he is talking with State Representative Steve Doyle.

Infused Languages and Cultures Across the Majors: Student Perspectives

Drs. Hippert and Peacock worked with Laurence Couturier (Language Resources Center/MLG) to organize an event this semester called "Infused Languages and Cultures Across the Majors: Students' Perspectives," which took place on Tuesday, March 28, from 3-5pm, in 321 Graff Main Hall. The event is highlighted right now in the top banner on UWL's home page under "More than English:" <http://news.uwlax.edu/more-than-english-2/>

Student presenters discussed their experiences with languages and cultures, in the classroom and abroad; attendees of the event took a "culture walk," in which they got to talk and ask questions about the presenters' research, study abroad experience, etc. Presenters also highlighted the benefits of knowing specific languages and cultures and how this prepares them for life after UWL, no matter what major/minor they completed. Two Anthropology students presented research that they conducted in Dr. Peacock's ANT 196 Introduction to Linguistic Anthropology class. Jaelyn Roland, ARC Major/ANT Minor, discussed her research on the changes of American perceptions of language use of South Asian characters on t.v. over the last two decades, and Elvia Valles, ANT Minor, presented her research called, "Two Idiomas, Mixed Cultures," which examines the everyday experiences and challenges of people who have two heritages, people who draw upon both languages and cultures in their interactions with people from both groups.

Congratulations to Elvia and Jaelyn for these wonderful presentations!