

The 6th Annual Conference on Teaching and Learning

January 18, 2005

Valhalla, Cartwright Center

Please pre-register by Jan. 10 at www.uwlax.edu/provost/teachingday.htm

Join us at 8:30 AM for a continental breakfast and “A Conversation on General Education:
What are we doing? Why do we care? What role will you play?”

- Discuss preliminary results of the General Education course reviews completed during Fall 2004
- Cross-disciplinary dialog with others who teach courses that focus on the same goals and learning outcomes
- Discuss findings from several assessment activities
- Discuss and provide input into a First Year Experience for UWL students
- Play a role in planning the future for UW-L’s General Education Program

Stay with us from 10:00 AM to Noon
(and lunch after!) for “Evaluating College Teaching”

This year, “Teaching Day” hosts a campus-wide discussion on the evaluation of instruction, as preparation for a workshop in May led by Peter Seldin, Distinguished Professor of Management at Pace University, a national expert on faculty development and evaluation, on Monday, May 23, 2005

Join us January 18th to discuss

- What is effective teaching?
- Students’ role in evaluating teaching
- Peer review of teaching
- Use of evaluations of teaching in promotion and tenure

See this brief article for an overview of the issues: <http://www.ntlf.com/pod/>

Come Jan. 18th as we renew our commitment to understanding excellence in teaching.
