The overall purpose of this popular Study Experience to Great Britain (offered since 1989) is to foster more health-related linkages and partnerships between the United States and Great Britain. A major focus of this study experience is having the participants become engaged in an in-depth professional and cultural experience to include focused visits and discussions.

The Great Britain Study Experience Goals:

- Provide an overview of the healthcare and public health systems offered through the National Health Service (NHS) and other health-related providers in Great Britain;
- Compare and contrast the British healthcare and public health systems with the systems in the United States;
- Provide an overview of health education and health promotion strategies for health enhancement (individual and population-based) in Great Britain;
- Compare and contrast the British health education and health promotion strategies with the strategies applied in the United States;
- Connect participants with key cultural aspects of Great Britain that have health-related impacts;
- Engage participants in experiences that align with their interests and professional needs;
- Provide an historic, social and cultural context for health and health promotion in Great Britain.

Co-Directors’ Biographies

Gary D. Gilmore, MPH, Ph.D., MCHES, since 1974, has held a joint appointment with the UW-La Crosse and the University of Wisconsin-Extension. He is professor and director of Graduate Community Health/Public Health Programs. His prior experiences have been in public health and preventive medicine at the Bergen County Health Department (NJ) and at the Preventive Medicine Unit, General Leonard Wood Hospital, U.S. Army (he is the recipient of the Army Commendation Medal in Preventive Medicine). His training in epidemiology and public health education is through the School of Public Health at the University of Minnesota, with additional training in epidemiology at the New England Epidemiology Institute, Tufts University. He is the founding and continuing director of the first Master of Public Health Program (CEPH accredited) offered in the University of Wisconsin System. During 1999-2000, Dr. Gilmore served as the first Fulbright Senior Scholar at the All India Institute of Hygiene and Public Health, Calcutta, India. In that capacity, he taught graduate students and medical students in public health, and conducted population-based research in West Bengal. Gilmore’s publications span more than four decades of professional activity to include peer-reviewed journal articles, books and technical reports. Dr. Gilmore has been conducting international study experiences in public health since 1989.

Christopher Squier, Ph.D., is director of Graduate Studies and professor, Department of Oral Pathology, Radiology and Medicine in the College of Dentistry and directs the Global Health Studies Program at the University of Iowa. He has degrees from the Universities of Cambridge and London and a Fellowship from the Royal College of Pathologists of London. He has served on the faculty at the London Hospital Medical College and the University of Illinois at Chicago. Squier’s research focuses on oral mucosal disease including oral cancer, and on tobacco control and he has published almost 200 books, chapters and peer-reviewed articles and made over 50 invited presentations abroad in the past 20 years. He has an honorary doctoral degree from Semmelweis University, Budapest, and is an honorary member of the British Society of Oral and Maxillofacial Pathology. He was a visiting professor at the National University of Singapore between 2010-13 and has ongoing collaborations on tobacco control in Hungary, Malaysia and Singapore.
